

JOB OPPORTUNITIES

The Eating Disorders Information Network (EDIN) is currently looking for committed, passionate individuals eager to serve the community through internship opportunities within the organization. Currently, EDIN has two internship opportunities available for both Summer 2008 and Fall 2008. See details below.

Working at EDIN can provide for a challenging yet extremely rewarding experience. Every day is different here at EDIN whether we are leading a workshop, reaching out to local schools, helping those suffering find the treatment and support they so desperately need or working with volunteers to get EDIN's message out to the local community.

Although EDIN has distinct departments, all staff work together as a team with volunteer coordinators, development and outreach staff supporting and enriching each other's efforts. It is this open and dynamic environment that keeps drawing the best and brightest people to involvement with EDIN.

Position: Development Associate

Responsible for working with EDIN Executive Director to coordinate annual giving campaign, mid-year and end of year appeal letters, prospect research, grant writing, donor correspondence, database management, special events planning and all other development related activities. Great opportunity for someone looking to gain significant administrative, cultivation, organizational and resume-building skills. For more information please contact Marisa Goodwin at: marisa@myedin.org

Position: Volunteer Outreach Associate

Responsible for working with EDIN Program Manager to create curriculum training packets, participate in networking/health fair events, create comprehensive power point presentations to a variety of audiences, solidify and follow up with school relationships, create monthly newsletter, coordinate volunteer meetings and training, work on all press related activities and EDIN marketing ventures. Great opportunity for someone looking to gain skills in lesson planning and marketing. For more information please contact Marisa Goodwin at: marisa@myedin.org

EDIN is a registered 501c3 organization located in downtown Decatur. The organization's mission is to prevent eating disorders through education, outreach and action.
